OLD ALLEGHENY.

Allegheny county still retains the proud distinction she has so long and nobly worn—that of the banner Republican county of the State. Where the whole people have done admirably it is perhaps invidious to single out any particular community for special praise; but still we have a right to feel proud of the brave and unselfish way in which our own Republicans sank whatever private pique, prejudices or dissensions may have existed among them, rallying in common to the support of a common cause and the defeat of the common enemy. Neither the defamatory harangues of imported orators, the detraction of domestic conspirators, nor the cunningest arts and wiles of combined foes without and within, availed to turn them from their kindred settled purpose. If Pennsylvania has been the key of the national situation, Allegheny county has no less been the citadel of the State. Here, some of the most desperate assaults of the enemy were made, and here, too, their route has been complete. Honor to Old Allegheny!

"GEORGIA sends greeting to Pennsylvania," shouted the Confederate papers when the Democratic "triumph" in that State, secured through terrorism and the intimidation and assassination of loyal citizens, was made known. And now Pennsylvania sends greeting to Georgia—as she once before sent it from Gettysburg. How does it sound?

"WHENEVER," the other day sneered the Post, with reference to the splendid HARTRANFT meeting of the business men of Pittsburgh a week ago, "did reform ever originate with merchants and capitalists?" We said they would let that paper know in a short time. They have now done so. How does our neighbor like its information?

"THE old way of putting it, is, 'Truth is mighty and must prevail,'" said the Post, the other day, when remarking on certain observations in the Conservative, which have since turned out to be fulfilled prophecies. We were quite content to let the Post present the matter after its own fashion—it is to be hoped that paper is satisfied with our mode of proving it.

THE Philadelphia Press ought to feel perfectly happy. Its gubernatorial candidate was "Honesty, Efficiency and Fidelity." In the election of General HARTRANFT the wish of that paper is thoroughly fulfilled. We said all along that its professed friendship for BUCKALEW was a ruse. FORNEY is an adept at ruses. He understands them almost as well as the plain people do the force and significance of straightforward action.

SAID the Philadelphia Press, a day or two before the election, in its last frantic effort to ruin where it could not rule: "There has never been so momentous an issue presented to the people of Pennsylvania as that which is involved in the present gubernatorial contest." The people of Philadelphia took the Press at its word, and behold the result. General HARTRANFT comes out of that city with a majority estimated at this writing at from fifteen to eighteen thousand. What does the Press think now concerning the instincts of the people of the staid old Quaker City and of the sturdy Keystone State?

OUR German fellow-citizens, to secure whose support of the Confederate ticket such strenuous and unusual exertions were made, and concerning whose alleged defection from the Republican ranks so many boasts were indulged in by the opposition, yesterday stood firmly—as we felt satisfied they would—by their principles and convictions, and, as is shown from the returns elsewhere printed, very generally voted for the Republican candidates. No class of citizens, as a whole, understand more intelligently the duty they owe to their country, or are more prompt and faithful in the discharge of it.

THE people cannot be too often or too earnestly reminded that no man manifestly, or even probably, unfit to fill the Presidential chair ought to be elected Vice President of the United States. This is a plain suggestion of good sense, and there have been sufficient examples of the evils resulting from its neglect to give it the force of an absolute rule. Now, it is certain there can be no reasonable doubt about the matter that Mr. GRATZ BROWN, of Missouri, is not a man to whom the duties of the Presidential office could be intrusted with safety. His performance at the last New Haven commencement would by itself suffice to prove his unfitness for any position of high trust or dignity. The full grown man capable, on a public occasion, of talking so foolishly as Brown there talked is unworthy to be permanent President of the Senate, and much less President of this great nation. Whether he was or was not sober at the time is a comparatively unimportant question. An English king said of an English statesman, that he had tried him drunk and tried him sober, and found that there was nothing in him. Drunk or sober, GRATZ BROWN, in the presence of the splendid audience of educated men and women assembled at the Yale commencement, made a speech in which it was difficult to decide whether the fool or the demagogue was the more conspicuous character. It would be folly to place such a man in a position from which he might any day be transferred by fate into the White House.

As Governor of Missouri, also, Mr. BROWN has been a signal failure. In his speeches lately he has had much to say about the enormities of carpet-bag rule in the South, and yet there is reason to believe what we are told, that many of the charges which he lays against the carpet-bag governments of the South are equally true as regards his own administration. Thus, under Republican rule in Missouri, perfect order was restored after the war, while the State debt was reduced from $38,500,695 to $17,860,000. Besides this, the accrued interest on the debt was paid, and the State bonds, with which the militia had been paid during the war, were redeemed. This was the work of six years of Republican administration. Since 1871, when Mr. BROWN took charge, instead of being further diminished, the State debt has been increased by $1,301,000, and but for the refusal of the State Senate to concur, it would have been increased by $40,000,000. When BROWN took charge there was a considerable sum in the Treasury, but for some months now, in spite of the increase of taxes, the Treasury has not been able to meet the demands upon it. And these things are not the worst, as, through Gov. BROWN'S indulgence for rebels, there are large sections of the State in which neither property nor life is secure from bushwhackers, or Ku-Klux.

THE STORY OF A YEAR.

A year ago to-day occurred the greatest conflagration ever known on this continent, and scarcely paralleled in modern history—the burning of the city of Chicago. Writing at the time of the appalling calamity, we ventured to predict that, notwithstanding the vitals of the city had, so to speak, been eaten out of her, yet the same wonderful spirit which conquered the proud mart from the marshy waste, made it teem with riches and industry, and filled it with the commerce of the world, would be found as elastic in the future as it had been aggressive in the past; that the courage of her people would prove to be still more superb than their calamity had been great; and that her awful catastrophe would develope new energies and activities which in the end would bring her out of her ashes clothed on with completer triumph and mastery than she had ever before known.

All these things, short as the period of her second life has been, have already come to pass. The manner in which Chicago has recovered from her devastation has been even more wonderful than the devastation itself. Beginning on the 15th of April, of the present year, which was the earliest date at which the winter had sufficiently moderated to permit the building of permanent structures, and ending with the first of next December, excluding Sundays, and counting each day of eight working hours, there will have been completed one brick, stone or iron building, twenty-five feet front and, from four to six stories high, for each hour of that time. Nor does this estimate, which is based by the papers of that city, fall below the actual fact. Include the many stone, brick, iron and wooden buildings erected outside of the burned district, and which alone equal the ordinary new structures put up in Chicago annually. Well may its journals boast that the world's history affords no precedent of such a growth, or of such energy and bravery on the part of a people who within the brief space of a year have seen two hundred million dollars of their property destroyed by fire.

Moreover, this wonderful recuperation has been attended with a corresponding increase of all branches of manufacture; of the business of all the great transportation companies tributary to the city, of a large augmentation of population, of a marked advance in real estate; in short, of all the elements of metropolitan greatness, magnificence and pride.

In everything that pertains to art, philosophy, science, literature, the culture, refinement of the mind, the progress has been wonderful. In every thing to play the confidence game on the country by

OUR VICTORY.

The battle has been fought, and the victory obtained. General HARTRANFT is the Governor elect of Pennsylvania, and every Republican voter has earned the right to rejoice. If hardly ever before in the history of the Commonwealth has there been a contest so full of important bearings to the country, and of interest to every true citizen, yet very seldom either has there been an election in which the people discharged their duty with so much quiet honesty and intelligent firmness, or made so notable a contribution to the furtherance of good government, and the insurance of that liberty and equity which knows neither North nor South, but only one undivided country, and the rendering of exact and equal justice to all men.

It is not necessary here to refer to the unusual—the unprecedented—fierceness of the struggle waged by the defeated Confederates, or to recount the heavy odds against which the Republicans had to contend. "Providence," said the first NAPOLEON, "is always on the side of the strongest battalions;" and while on our side we had truth and right, yet on that of our opponents were ranged all the malignant forces and auxiliaries which the most fertile-minded unscrupulousness could impress into service against us. This makes our victory—splendid enough in itself—all the more noble and notable; and will, as it should, cause the breast of every Republican in this State to quicken with honorable pride at the recollection of the part he bore in the memorable struggle.

For Gen. HARTRANFT himself, he knows now that which at the very outset of the slanderous crusade against him we predicted he would in the outcome know—the luxury of undergoing persecution at the hands of his enemies, when the reward is so magnificent a vindication at the hands of his friends.

A lecture was delivered in Boston a few days since on "Good Manners." The coal scuttle, the cottage, the kiss-me quick, the Quaker bonnet and the three-decker were handsomely detailed for woman's delight and amusement.

It is proposed to organise a new Produce Exchange in New Orleans. The trade of that city in western produce now amounts to $30,000,000 a year, and is rapidly increasing.

The State Superintendent of Insurance in Illinois is now concerting means for reaching the evasions of the insurance laws of that State by the companies. It appears that some of them employ brokers in Chicago, who take risks and issue policies and thus escape the taxes levied and fail to give the security required by law.

The city of Milwaukee is developing considerable business and manufacturing activity. A number of new factories have been started lately, and old companies are enlarging their operations.

A new branch of industry has been started in Florida, which bids fair to prove exceedingly remunerative. It is the manufacture of feather flowers. The flowers are made of the plumage of the white heron, while the leaves are taken from the paroquet.

Near Sanford, in Lincoln county, Ky., is an old block-house, known as Logan's Fort, built in 1772—one hundred years ago—as a refuge from the Indians. It is proposed that its centennial anniversary shall be properly celebrated.

In the course of a month or two there will be placed a line of very large and powerful steamtugs at both entrances of the Straits of Magellan for the purpose of towing sailing vessels, bound to and from the west coast of South America, through the Straits, thus doing away with the difficult and oftentimes dangerous voyage round Cape Horn.

An effort is being made by the city of Houston, Texas, to get the State Capital from the city of Austin, and offers of material inducements in the form of ground, money, &c., to secure this removal have been made. A bitter war of words rages between the two cities.

The merchants of the principal cities of Germany refuse to sell any kind of grain or merchandise unless they have the commodities actually in store. The result is a safe trade, and an absence of speculation that under certain circumstances would seem enviable even in Wall street or Chicago.

Some English capitalists have purchased, with the intention of at once fully developing, one of the richest lead mines in the country, known as the Karrick lode, situated in West Dubuque, Iowa, and which, for want of sufficient funds to develop it, has been lying idle many years.

A Lake Superior ore recently had a sheet of copper rolled as thin as note-paper, and on it wrote his will.

Our difficulties with Mexico on one point are in a fair way of settlement. The refusal of the Mexican arbitrators to refer certain disputed claims to an umpire to be appointed by the American and Mexican Claims Commission has not been sustained by their government.

A much needed survey of the Pacific is about to be made by the government. At present there are no good surveys of these waters, and, as they lie in the path of the San Francisco steamships, it appears to be of the utmost importance that there should be.

A Boston landlady lately refused to give up the body of a boarder because he owed her ten dollars. She was finally compelled to do so, but was very indignant thereat. As she couldn't have used it for hash, there is some curiosity to know how she could have got her money back by keeping it.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says that in going from Bridgeport to Little Rock he saw a man tumble off the rear platform of the cars, roll down an embankment twenty feet, with a cigar in his mouth, pick himself up, and catch the train without difficulty.

PERSONAL.

Joaquin Miller is reviving "The Isles of the Amazons," as printing in the Overland, for publication in book form by Roberts Bros. at an early date. He is hacking and rearranging his magazine proofs at a great rate, so that the book will be much altered. He complains much of the printers, who frequently make 'stuff and nonsense' of his copy, being unable to read it and content to guess at it, and so putting into print mistakes which his critics seize upon and scourge him for." The Boston Times puts a quietus to the story of his outlandish furnishment of his room at the hotel, which is embellished only by fancy. Bestopians see nothing outre about him. "He has none of the 'Wild Songster of the Prairies,' inspired and untamable, fourth hand air about him; but he does have the appearance of an uncommon man. Dressed in flannel black, with a black velvet waistcoat, broad collar, and small, bright, crimson neckerchief, with crisp, light brown beard and long, curry brown hair, crowned with an oddly shaped and rather eccentric hat, his deep set eyes wandering restlessly, he makes a notable appearance on the streets; but he passes quietly along, by no means seeking, but apparently avoiding observance."

A leading New York druggist, who is about forty-three and a batchelor, met a young woman, very comely, graceful and clever, some two years since, and was so charmed with her that he proposed marriage two weeks after his introduction. She accepted, and he was happy for six months, until he discovered by accident that she had been divorced from three husbands since the war, and had two others before, from whom she had separated without legal proceedings. He taxed her with the facts, and she did not deny them. She said he had never asked her about her antecedents, which was true, or she would have told him all, which may or may not be true. Instead of five and twenty, as he had supposed, she is ten years older, and, though winning in the extreme, appears to be a regular adventuress. When he told her he must leave her, she replied she was entirely willing; that there were hundreds of men who would be only too glad to marry her. He has gone, no one knows where. The wonder, it is said, is on the point of marrying again.

The Unitarians of Chicago have resolved to erect a chapel as a memorial to the wife of Robert Laird Collier, recently deceased.

Last Monday the corner stone was laid at Duxbury, Massachusetts, for a monument to the stout old Puritan, Captain Miles Standish, and there was a deal of parade about it, too, in which, of course, Boston managed to be magna pars. Captain Miles owes his distinction mainly to the poet Longfellow.

W. F. Kirsey, a Georgia man, lately lost two grown up children within five minutes of each other. An uncle who came to superintend the burial services was fatally injured by his mules running away, and a short time before a son had been made blind by an accident.

Among the suicides of the past week is Sir James Shaw Wills, one of the Judges of the English Court of Common Pleas. Gout got into his brain, which drove him mad—and when mad he killed himself.

The Indian chiefs who are at present stopping in New York city, made a visit to Mlle. Lucca at her residence the other day. They drank champagne in a workmanlike manner, one of the chiefs graciously informing the hostess that that was his favorite beverage. They then sang a very distressing Dirgeway, and at their request Lucca gave several songs, with Max Maretzek as accompanist at the piano.

A late Hawaiian paper contains an advertisement of a deserted wife, with respect to her runaway husband, which is both interesting and amusing, as exhibiting peculiar phases of the Hawaiian character. The advertisement is prefixed with the suggestive cut of a cocoanut tree, with a native climbing with a stick and bundle on his shoulder, and reads: "Know all men, that I, the undersigned, a woman living at Koloa, Kauai, do hereby make inquiry in regard to Wahineeru, my husband, for I have waited for him during the past nine years, in which time I have not set my eyes on him, neither have I heard his name, nor his place of residence. Now, if he is still in existence, and is living on any of these islands, or anywhere else in the world, he had better make it known through the newspapers. And if he does not show himself, or advertise at the expiration of 40 days from this date, then I shall consider him as dead, whereupon I shall immediately proceed to get married to another man."

A mail dealer of Geneva, New York, was one of the victims of the late Metis disaster. Soon after the following letter came to him from a customer: "Mr. J. H. Ferguson—Dear Sir: Please send me a car load of mail, best quality. I noticed in the papers that there was a man killed by the name of J. H. Ferguson, Geneva, N. Y., by an accident on a steamboat. If there is any truth in it, and you cannot send me the mail, let me know by telegram and oblige."

The Democratic papers have been claiming Robert T. Lincoln, son of the late President, as a Greeley man. Mr. Lincoln is in Europe, but a letter from him says: "If you think it worth while you may say that any statement that I am a Greeley man is denied at my request, and that I am a Republican, and heartily in favor of the election of Grant and Wilson."

A correspondent of the New York Herald, who lately called on Senator "Parson" Brownlow, says he found him at his home, in Knoxville, lying prostrate on the lounge, while at his feet sat his daughter, the ministering angel of the household—a patient, pale-faced girl of about twenty years. The Parson was in his shirt-sleeves, propped up by a pillow, his hands and arms shaking violently, as if urged by some invisible electric battery. The volume of his once powerful voice was reduced to the merest whisper, so low that his visitor had to stoop to his pillow to hear him; but over his stalwart soul no palsy or tremor had come, and through his eyes flashed at intervals gleams of the same old fire that made his foes tremble in the days gone by.

GENERAL AND PARTICULAR.

A mixture of equal parts of cryolite and of chloride of tarrum, it is stated, forms a flux superior to borax for soldering iron or brazing copper, brass or bronze.

A Jersey paper tells a very interesting story of a little boy in that State. He was climbing an apple tree, and when upon the topmost limb he slipped and fell to the ground. He was picked up and carried to the house in an insensible condition. After watching by his bedside through many weary hours, his mother perceived signs of returning consciousness. Leaning over him she asked if there was anything she could do for him, now that he began to feel better. Should she bathe his forehead, or change his pillow, or fan him? Was there anything he wanted? Opening his eyes languidly, and looking at her, the little sufferer said: "Yes I want a pair of pants with a pocket behind." He got them.

A citizen of Alabama has a bantam chicken which catches rats and holds them until they are killed.

Although the number of new steamboats now building for lake and river navigation in the West and Southwest is not equal to that of former years, yet the aggregate tonnage exceeds any former year's work.

An English manufacturer has just made a monster umbrella for an African chief. It is 65 feet in circumference, the ironwood ribs being 9 feet long, and there are 140 yards of material in it. It is covered with red, blue, and white chintz, and takes two men to expand it.

A Chicago paper says the Norwegian clergy are fond of grog, and take a drink or two in the vestry after retiring from the pulpit. As they are no doubt true Christians, the whisky they drink is probably the spirits of just men.

A model bill, made out by an old farmer against his neighbor, reads as follows: "Neighbor A. Dr. to B. to horse and wagon goin' to mill once since and twice before, one dollar."

More than $28,000,000 persons, exclusive of season-ticket holders, traveled upon the railways of England and Wales in 1871. Out of this immense number, incredible as it may seem, only six persons were killed by causes beyond their own control.

A woman in New York recently died under very singular circumstances. She was cracking nuts by striking them with a knife, when a small piece of hatshell flew into her eye. She did not think much of it at the time, but some time afterward the eye became very painful, and inflammation set in.

The white elephant recently captured in Siam takes rank to the Queen, the heir apparent ranking next after the elephant.

The new silver dollar recently struck in the San Francisco mint, is said to be adapted for general circulation in China, where the want of silver coin as an acknowledged value has been much felt. It is worth six per cent. more than the old dollar, and will be received in China on the same terms as the Mexican dollar, which has hitherto been at a premium of five to eight per cent.

A lecture was delivered in Boston a few days since on "Good Manners." The coal scuttle, the cottage, the kiss-me quick, the Quaker bonnet and the three-decker were handsomely detailed for woman's delight and amusement.

It is proposed to organise a new Produce Exchange in New Orleans. The trade of that city in western produce now amounts to $30,000,000 a year, and is rapidly increasing.

The State Superintendent of Insurance in Illinois is now concerting means for reaching the evasions of the insurance laws of that State by the companies. It appears that some of them employ brokers in Chicago, who take risks and issue policies and thus escape the taxes levied and fail to give the security required by law.

The city of Milwaukee is developing considerable business and manufacturing activity. A number of new factories have been started lately, and old companies are enlarging their operations.

A new branch of industry has been started in Florida, which bids fair to prove exceedingly remunerative. It is the manufacture of feather flowers. The flowers are made of the plumage of the white heron, while the leaves are taken from the paroquet.

Near Sanford, in Lincoln county, Ky., is an old block-house, known as Logan's Fort, built in 1772—one hundred years ago—as a refuge from the Indians. It is proposed that its centennial anniversary shall be properly celebrated.

In the course of a month or two there will be placed a line of very large and powerful steamtugs at both entrances of the Straits of Magellan for the purpose of towing sailing vessels, bound to and from the west coast of South America, through the Straits, thus doing away with the difficult and oftentimes dangerous voyage round Cape Horn.

An effort is being made by the city of Houston, Texas, to get the State Capital from the city of Austin, and offers of material inducements in the form of ground, money, &c., to secure this removal have been made. A bitter war of words rages between the two cities.

The merchants of the principal cities of Germany refuse to sell any kind of grain or merchandise unless they have the commodities actually in store. The result is a safe trade, and an absence of speculation that under certain circumstances would seem enviable even in Wall street or Chicago.

Some English capitalists have purchased, with the intention of at once fully developing, one of the richest lead mines in the country, known as the Karrick lode, situated in West Dubuque, Iowa, and which, for want of sufficient funds to develop it, has been lying idle many years.

A Lake Superior ore recently had a sheet of copper rolled as thin as note-paper, and on it wrote his will.

Our difficulties with Mexico on one point are in a fair way of settlement. The refusal of the Mexican arbitrators to refer certain disputed claims to an umpire to be appointed by the American and Mexican Claims Commission has not been sustained by their government.

A much needed survey of the Pacific is about to be made by the government. At present there are no good surveys of these waters, and, as they lie in the path of the San Francisco steamships, it appears to be of the utmost importance that there should be.

A Boston landlady lately refused to give up the body of a boarder because he owed her ten dollars. She was finally compelled to do so, but was very indignant thereat. As she couldn't have used it for hash, there is some curiosity to know how she could have got her money back by keeping it.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says that in going from Bridgeport to Little Rock he saw a man tumble off the rear platform of the cars, roll down an embankment twenty feet, with a cigar in his mouth, pick himself up, and catch the train without difficulty.

GIPSY CEREMONIES.

Weddings and Deaths Among the Bohemians.

A French newspaper tells that a band of gypsies which has just taken up its abode on some vacant ground in the Rue Duchesne, Montmartre, on the outskirts of Cairo, lately had a marriage celebrated between two of their tribe. The bride was about twenty-five, with three horribly dirty children, and the bridegroom a little older, one of those well-known types, with bronzed visage and long black hair. In fact the ceremony was only the legalization of a union that had long existed. The chief blessed the two spouses in the presence of the band and the spectators; and after an address a pitcher was smashed and the pieces thrown to the four cardinal points. The several caravans encamped in Paris have been ordered to plant their tents outside the fortifications, as they showed not only a propensity for, but a strange aptitude in pilfering.

The recent marriage of one of the tribe has been followed by a death. Four men were seen bearing a beautiful young girl out of one of the tents. She was almost as dark and swarthy as a Yuhian, yet through the midnight of her hair the gleams of approaching death were but too plainly visible. The Bohemians said that she was dying, they had tried to save her, but without hope of success. The chief of the tribe, the very picture of Scott's Hayraddin Maugrabin, brought forth a bird from the tent, and put it to the dying girl's lips, and then let it fly away. He explained this as being the custom of the tribe; the bird was supposed to receive the soul of the dying girl, and thus charged would fly with it to heaven. But even this concession was at variance with Hayraddin's creed, for when Quentin Durward inquired into his opinions of a future state, he said that he hoped his remains would be mingled with the elements, the earthly portions to enrich the soil, the watery portions to swell the fountains, the airy portions to play in the blighted clouds, and the fiery portions to add to the splendor of Aldebaran and his brethren. "If this faith have I lived, in this faith will I die," said the hardened atheist. "And in this faith the poor girl seemed to die; for she expired without any apparent confusion or absolution, some few minutes after the bird had sped on its way heavenward.

Defend Your Health.

The fall of the leaves not only symbolizes human decay, but promotes it. In other words, the effluvia from dying and rotten vegetation is unfavorable to health. To this and other causes—especially excess of moisture in the atmosphere—may be ascribed to the prevalence of acute disorders of the stomach, bowels and liver at this season. Every person of bilious habit is liable to be very bilious in the fall. Then, too, all persons whose digestion is weak are more than ordinarily dyspeptic, and individuals predisposed to colic, diarrhœa and dysentary are particularly likely to be attacked by these complaints. The most complete defense against each and all of these distressing ailments is bodily vigor. To obtain this blessing in all its plenitude where it does not exist, and to preserve and perpetuate it where it does exist, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is earnestly recommended. It is the peculiar office of this preparation to reinforce and regulate the important organs which digest and temper the food, and convert it into life sustaining blood. Bodily vigor depends upon the nourishing qualities of that fluid, and the nutritiousness of the blood depends upon the functional activity and regularity which it is the special province of the Bitters to secure. Hence it is the best defense of health at this season, and indeed at all seasons. When dysentery, diarrhœa, bilious colic, and other violent affections of the bowels, become epidemic, as they often do in certain parts of the country in the fall, it will be found that persons who have been wise enough to resort to the Bitters as a preventive are almost invariably exempted from the scourge.

How the Elections Passed Off.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

Receiving the Returns at Headquarters.

Grand Republican Jubilee.

Dem.-Libs. Overwhelmed and Discomfited, etc, etc., etc.

The elections in Allegheny county passed off quietly. The day was most delightful, a bright sun shining from morning till night. The deepest interest was manifested in the result, and both parties mustered their full strength. From the opening to the closing of the polls the vote was kept up briskly. There were very few if any breaches of the peace, and no disturbances of a serious character occurred. The closing of the drinking saloons and bar-rooms tended greatly to the preservation of good order, and there were heard on all hands the warmest commendations of the new law.

It became apparent, from the first counts in the various wards, that the Republicans were determined on polling their average vote; that the disaffection was not near so serious as was represented, and in many cases apprehended. This encouraged the party organizations in the several districts, and incited them to renewed exertions. The advantages gained in the early hours were kept up, and as the day wore on it only became a question as to what the majorities should be. All the districts did well, while many acquitted themselves most nobly.

THE KNOW-NOS.

With all the clamor raised by the opposition in regard to the colonization of negro voters, but very few of this class were denied a vote. They were not to be intimidated, and when they offered to vote they were generally well fortified with tax receipts and other evidences of their right to vote that all efforts to defeat them proved futile. In only one instance, so far as we can learn, was there an arrest made of a colored man for illegal voting, and after a hearing he was discharged.

ALDERMAN STRAIN ARRESTED FOR ILLEGAL VOTING.

Alderman John A. Strain, a well known Democratic leader, who lives in the Third ward of this city, and has his office in the Fifth ward, offered his vote in the latter ward, which was objected to by the Board. He stated that he had a right to vote where his office was located, and his ballot was received. He was soon after arrested and taken before Commissioner Gamble, charged with illegal voting, under act of Congress. He had a partial hearing, and at the instance of United States District Attorney Swoope was held to bail to answer in the sum of $5,000. The arrest created considerable excitement.

A FAIR ELECTION.

Every appliance of the law was used to secure a fair election, and with the most satisfactory results. There were Supervisors appointed by the United States Court, and overseers chosen by the State courts, in which both parties were fairly represented, and in addition to these there were Deputy United States Marshals selected in the following manner: two cubs, and in some of the boroughs. No election was ever held in which the ballot was so carefully scrutinized.

THE HOURLY RETURNS.

The hourly returns of the vote, throughout the day, were furnished by the Fire Alarm Telegraph, under the direction of Captain Fullwood, and proved highly satisfactory. The data thus furnished enabled the public to form tolerably accurate estimates, and prepared them for the grand results which were to follow the announcement of the aggregate results in the evening.

The Republican Committee had secured City Hall, for the purpose of receiving the votes of the several districts, and as night came thousands sought this place of resort.

At City Hall.

City Hall, last night, was filled to its utmost capacity, and it is needless to say that the immense audience was in the most jubilant spirits. The stage had been arranged for the accommodation of the members of the Committee, reporters, and ushers, and the Western Union and Pacific and Atlantic Telegraph Companies had wires run into the hall, from which dispatches were received and transmitted to all points.

Ex-Senator Thomas J. Bigham acted as Master of Ceremonies, and those who have witnessed him in that capacity know how admirably he acquits himself. It was about half after seven o'clock when Mr. Bigham began to read dispatches. As they were almost without exception favorable, the reading created the most intense enthusiasm.

BIG MAJORITIES.

The big majorities and the large gains exhibited in several of the wards in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, as well as the boroughs on the South Side, were hailed with unbounded applause. The Sixth ward, Pittsburgh, and the Second ward, Allegheny, were specially applauded.

BIGHAM'S HOME.

Mr. Bigham, in announcing the returns from his own district, Mt. Washington, stated that there was a gain of 156. (Cheers and shouts of "hully for Bigham.)

FROM TOM. MARSHALL'S HOME.

The next returns were from Tom. Marshall's district—McClure township—Hartranft, 102; Buckalew, 51. Said Mr. Bigham—"Last year this district gave two to one against Mr. Brother Thomas; now its two to one in our favor." [Loud cheers, and cries of "poor Tom."]

FROM PHILADELPHIA.

The first item from Philadelphia announced a Republican gain of 846 in the Fifth ward.

Mr. Bigham—That is the ward in which the confessions John Forney lives. He is as deep a confliction to-night as brother Marshall. [Loud applause, and cheers for Philadelphia.]

The Great Western band now struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," which was the signal for deafening applause, only interrupted by the band striking up with "Yankee Doodle," quick time, those on the stage waving their hats and shouting at the top of their voices.

FROM HARTRANFT'S HOME.

Mr. Bigham—"I will now give you the returns from General Hartranft's home, Norristown—First ward, gain 61; second ward, gain 24—a total gain of 85 in a Democratic district."

The most deafening applause followed this announcement.

MORE FROM PHILADELPHIA.

Language fails to convey an adequate idea of the feeling manifested on the reception of the glorious news from Philadelphia. The immense gains were hailed with vociferous shouts, cheers, and "tigers."

MUSIC AND SONGS.

"Sherman's March" was played after the reception of the news from Philadelphia, and the whole audience joined in swelling the chorus.

Mr. Pope, the vocalist, was now loudly called upon, and sang two of his inimitable songs, which intensified the enthusiasm, if such a thing were possible.

STILL MORE NEWS FROM PHILADELPHIA.

The results in more of the wards in Philadelphia were next read, and cheer after cheer followed.

SONG FOR A DEFEATED CANDIDATE.

Mr. Bigham now electrified the audience by announcing that the majority in old Allegheny would approximate closely 8,000, according to data at hand. Shouts and cheers for Allegheny, still the "Banner county of the state."

After the reading of a few more dispatches the band struck up the "Red, White and Blue."

SPEECH FROM MR. SWOOPE.

H. Bucher Swoope now made his appearance, in response to repeated calls, and after thanking the audience for their kindness, stated that the majority in Philadelphia would not be less than 20,000. [Immense applause.] He had pledged Allegheny county to the wigwam at Philadelphia for 7,000 majority, and the returns already in gave almost that figure. [Applause.] Then where are all the Liberal Republicans that were to follow Moorehead and Marshall? [Laughter, and cries of "Gone up salt River."] Mr. Swoope said the State would not give less than twenty thousand majority for Hartranft. [Applause.]

There were cries of "Where's Palmer" "How's Bill McMullen?" "Where's Alderman Strain?" &c. Mr. Swoope responded by saying that "Palme was dead and buried, and Alex. McClure has been interred beside him." [Laughter.] For the first time in many years, Bill McMullen's power in Philadelphia had been broken. [Applause.] He then stated that there had been 3,500 reported for him. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. Swoope, after thanking the audience for their kindness, bade them good night.

OTHER SPEECHES.

Gen. Negley was next loudly called, and made a brief but very congratulatory speech, which was loudly applauded.

Major E. A. Montooth, Chairman of the Committee on Meetings and Speakers, was then introduced by Senator Bigham, and highly complimented for the manner in which he had done his work. As the Major had compelled others to do a good deal of speaking, he proposed now that he (Montooth) should make a little speech himself.

The Major responded very briefly, thanking God that the efforts of the Republican party had been crowned with success. In Allegheny county the party had done its whole duty. [Cheers, and cries of "That's so."] Gen. Hartranft would have all that was promised for him—200 majority—and a little more. [Applause.] That was glorious enough for October. Next month old Allegheny would roll up 12 000 for Grant and Wilson. [Cheers, and cries of 15,000.]

Mr. Bigham—The Major pledges 12,000 majority for Grant. Some of you are not satisfied with that, and I am not; we must and will make it 15,000 [Tremendous cheers, and shouts of "That's the figure."]

A VOICE FROM SEWICKLEY BOROUGH.

Mr. Bigham—I have here a return from Sewickley borough, the home of the editor of the Herald. Let us see how the moral and political influence of that paper have affected the result: Hartranft 191; Buckalew 96; a gain of 38 over last year. [Laughter and applause, with groans for the Le-der.]

John Negley, of Allegheny, was introduced by Mr. Bigham, and made a few brief but very appropriate laudatory of Allegheny city, all of which was well deserved, and enthusiastically cheered.

CLOSING OF THE SCENES.

It was after ten o'clock when Mr. Bigham announced that the result was so well assured, both in the county and the State, that it was useless to hold the audience longer. He paid a high compliment to General Hartranft, and took a little to himself in helping to win the glorious victory. He said Mr. Stockton had made an unsolicited, upon his own, son of his speeches, but he thought he had paid him back, and was willing to give him a clear receipt. [Laughter and applause.]

Major Callow, of Allegheny, followed in a brief speech, which was voted very able. By this time there was some more music, and the audience slowly dispersed.

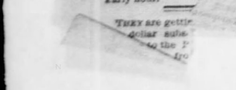
SCENES ON THE STREETS.

The thousands who had congregated in the hall now formed in line, headed by the band, and marched en masse through the streets, shouting, cheering, singing, and jubilating in every conceivable manner. They visited the various Republican newspaper offices, and serenaded each in turn.

The scenes in the streets beggared all description. Nothing like it has ever been witnessed before. It was long after midnight before the general jubilation ceased.

At Democratic Liberal Headquarters.

The scenes at the Democratic and Liberal headquarters on Fifth avenue were as disheartening as they could possibly be. Early in the day a wet blanket had been cast upon the hopes of the Democrats, and when they met at night they were demoralized and dispirited. The few grains of comfort which they managed to pick up during the evening were entirely insufficient to keep up their spirits. Mr. Moore finally gave it up in disgust, and disappointed followers that he would tell them the truth—that he had always told them the truth, and did not wish after so many of them had gone their pale on Buckanan, and lost, to tell them sicked. In substance, that they had been sold out, by scoundrels, in Philadelphia, and had lost the State. He talked of frauds, etc., etc., and threw up the sponge as gracefully as possible. The goo dispersed at an early hour.



The City Last Night.

The Result Interpreted.

Yesterday and last night the people of Pittsburgh, who are as slow to kindle and as steady to burn as hickory, because their heart is firm and sound, returned answer to Horace Greeley's insult on the 19th of September, when he accused them of trying to keep alive the bitterness and hatred of civil strife for the advantage of a political party, because they had opened wide the doors of their best hospitality to the veteran defenders of the nation who had just before met here to sustain, in their indorsement of President Grant and General Hartranft, the high results of the war for Union, reconciliation and peace. We wrote then, speaking of the glorious outpouring of the people, and of the wonderful transformation of our smoky city, that the men of the nation would hereafter say, when talking of the 17th and 18th of September, 1872, that on those days was quickened and impelled the impulse which elected Hartranft and Grant.

That which was then moral prophecy, was yesterday made fulfilled and accomplished fact. "Coming events cast their shadows before." The blossom of those bright days has ripened into the healing fruit of this; and just as, notwithstanding the eloquent and electric expression which the patriotic instinct of the people found in the ringing addresses and resolutions passed at the Convention proper, their overcharged emotion was compelled to find additional vent in illuminations, marches, songs, shouts, vivas, and a general public abandon of patriotic passion and fervency, so last night — notwithstanding the fact that they had by their ballots turned prediction into reality, elected Hartranft and trodden Greeleyism into the ground—they found themselves unable, without further visible expression, to make themselves fully and fairly understood.

Thus it came about that, yesterday, at night, after the polls were closed, and the returns from various portions of the State left no doubt of the triumphant election of General Hartranft, the congregated people, who had gathered in knots and groups here and there, to catch the tenor of the latest reports, all at once, suddenly and simultaneously, became inspired with a grand necessity of further utterance over the magnificent victory they had won. The need of the time, too, particularly in seasons of high magnetic emotion, is always sure to be met with its supply. Hence, at about eleven o'clock, when the impromptu orators had all grown hoarse, a band of music, playing a Union tune, appeared upon the scene; and in a moment all the waiting and lingering multitudes had caught the majestic infection of their harmony, and the ten thousands with which the streets were thronged had resolved themselves into instant order and harmony. Up and down the streets they surged, the interpreting band leading, and the packed throngs of the people falling into line behind them, with alignment as fine and step as true as was ever shown in the most imminent days of the war. Vox populi vox Dei. We have not time to translate—let the Pittsburgh Post do so. But it meant this: That we are a nation still. That the same sacrificial vitalities which once saved it are still ready to preserve it. That the true grandeur beneath us and the true skies above us, are none of them to be made ashamed. That the verdicts of our mighty struggle, inwoven into the fibres of our existence, are to be sacredly maintained. That calumny and detraction cannot win. That the devil is as much fool as liar, and that the best hope of the Republic is now, as in the past, in its honest, intelligent, and conscientious masses, who seek neither place nor power, but only equity and justice. And that is still the meaning of the shouts as we go to press.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Result of the Elections.

Below we give the returns of the vote for Governor, Supreme Judge and Auditor General, so far as the same have been received up to the hour of going to press. Fifty-eight districts of the county (including most of the city districts, where the principal disaffection existed), give Hartranft 16,721, and Buckalew 11,741—a majority for Hartranft of 4,980. In thirty of the districts included in the above, in which returns have been received for Congressmen-at-large, Scofield has 8,741, and Hartranft 8,388, showing that Scofield leads Hartranft in the districts reported only 353 votes. This is about the extent of the defection against Hartranft. From this data, Hartranft's majority will probably reach 8,000. The majority for Supreme Judge and Auditor General will not vary materially from that for Governor. Following are the figures:

Governor, Supreme Judge and Auditor General.

THE STOCKTON CASE.

How Col. Joseph A. Stockton was Treated in the Vermont Insane Asylum.

The counsel for Col. Joseph A. Stockton, formerly of this city, who was released from the Vermont Insane Asylum a few weeks ago, has published a history of the case and some alleged details of a system of punishment practiced by the management of the institution. A device called the "bath," is among the rigors of discipline at the asylum. The victim's hands and feet are tied and usually a gag inserted in his mouth, in which condition he is placed in the bottom of the bath-tub under the faucet, through which the water is then let, filling his ears, nostrils and mouth, and producing all the sensations of suffocation by drowning. This is carried to such as great an extent as in the opinion of the attendants the physical condition of the patient will endure. Col. Stockton, while there, had occasion to undergo this system of torture. The patients were out taking a walk when one of them, named Sheldon, handed Stockton a small piece of money which he said another patient had given him, but which he had, in fact, stolen. The man who had it made complaint to the attendants, and, suspicion fastening upon Stearns, he clear himself he reported that Stockton had it, one of the physicians went to the Colonel's room and inquired about the money, which he gave up, telling the circumstances. Soon two attendants entered, and roughly seizing and binding him, subjected him to the treatment described. From the effects of the bandaging and the discharge of the bath he did not recover for several months. One of the attendants testified to this as well as the Colonel, and said the design of it was to extort confession.
